It is a record/playback program. It captures the mouse cursor movements as you move the cursor in the program window. Then you can record/play the movements back as you move the mouse. Can be used to teach hand/eye coordination by moving the mouse in a way as though you were playing a game where you would like to improve your skills. How to use: Insert the recorder and hit the record button. The program will pause and record your hand movements as you move the mouse. Press the stop button to stop the recording. You can watch the preview window or press the play button to resume the recording. You can save a single or all your recorded mouse movements as a xls, xlsx, or csv file. "Helping software developers build, debug, and test their software on Mac OS X" Atom Screen Recorder is the simplest application to record your screen. It offers a quick capture of an active window in a single click. You can then customize the screen recording with a variety of settings. For example, you can choose a specific area of your screen to record, or record the entire screen in an instant. The tool doesn't allow you to make your screen recording private; however, you can set a timer for your recording to expire. The system will then automatically pause the recording, and you can resume it later. You can start the recording process by pressing a hotkey or via an icon that's placed on the active window. After you've recorded your screen, you can then play the video back or save it. You can add a title for the video file and choose a duration. The video can also be sent via email, saved to a CD or DVD, or streamed online. The application doesn't use a lot of resources; it doesn't consume a lot of memory, and doesn't slow down the computer's operation. With Atom Screen Recorder, you can capture your screen activities quickly and easily, and then customize the recording to meet your needs. The tool isn't ideal for someone looking for a screen capture utility; however, it does provide basic functionality, and does it in an intuitive way. FEATURES: Snap the Active Window. Snap a window to the left, right, top, or bottom of the screen. Crop a window. Record a portion of a 77a5ca646e

In a study of of 200 clinical images from the Alzheimer's Disease Neuroimaging Initiative, 5 out of the 6 nurses who participated in the study identified the pathology correctly when asked to do so, with an overall accuracy of 93.2%. But you need look no further than the five image sets, each taken at a different point of time, and each showing a different patient, to see that things aren't always that clear. The sample can be read here: www.pnas.org/content/early/2013/03/29/1303853111.full.pdf + html. Of the five nurses who correctly identified the pathology in at least some of the images, four nurses made a correct diagnosis in at least three out of the five images. Notable in this case was one nurse who made all of the correct diagnoses. The problem isn't limited to human experts, as is shown by how different machine learning algorithms could not do better. In fact, even
