It's a simple, but well executed little game that makes for a nice antidote to the hyperactive, objective based gameplay that's prevalent in modern game design. It's a Flood of little stories. A dark and mystical place where animals are crazy and the walls are alive... but somehow aren't controlling you. Play as the last surviving creature of a great flood, before the walls close in to crush you and everything you love. It's also a story where you are a fish that wants to live. Live in the water, swim, eat if you're hungry. If you're fast enough, you'll avoid anything in your way as you race towards the hole in the wall. Game Features: Explore the Flood: Immerse yourself in a world destroyed by mysterious, relentless tides, where the wicked step in tiny triumphs and you bear witness to their misdeeds. Challenge and Compare: There's no match for the challenge, to stay alive long enough to see the game's end. Track a high score board against your own best as well as your friends. Multiple Game Stories: Dozens of scenes, all told in their own unique, funny style. Be (Almost) Animalistic: Swim through the Flood, wriggle along the floor, chase things, and stick to walls. Catch the Delicious and Lonely: Jump, slither and wiggle, picking up powerups as you go, while avoiding the hungry predators that follow. The Flood 2: Download now on Google Play, AppStore, and Amazon! Book of Unwritten Tales 2 Ω - 5 Ω The world is dying, but life goes on. What is Game? Is a game is a model and a simulation of the events and scenes of the real world. Why Playing Games? It's fun to play a game. Many people like to play games. They like to improve their skills. In this game, you can challenge many opponents by building the Box for you. Why Games are Different from Real Life? Gameplay like "abstract game", it is also like a simulation of events. But unlike real life, the rules of gameplay are already decided. It is more like a model. But Game is not always like this. There are games that are like "abstract games" but still like to play games. At first, you may think that a game is a game. But it is not. It's not like "real game". It's just a model. Important! When I am talking about a game, I'm not talking about "video games" such as "Diablo" or "Final Fantasy". I'm talking about "abstract games" such as "Chess" and "Go". Even though many people call it "video game", but it's not. A Game Can Be a Simulation Of Reality! As we have already seen, a game is not a model or an abstract game. It is a simulation of events. When you watch a car driving video, we have seen many cars driving in front of us. That's why it is called "dynamic". Dynamism means that you can't ignore the other cars that move and there are more obstacles and even other players who move in this game. In addition, when a player builds a facility like a house in this game, the player can use it. Like the example shown in the screenshot above. Why This Game Is Unlike Other Games? As mentioned above, this game is a simulation of reality. It's like playing "Chess" or "Go" or even "Diablo". This game shows you how to handle with real game, and this is one of the differences of this game. As you know, there are many games that can play "real game" in our life. But this is different from other games that can only play "abstract game". If you want to know the difference, just think about chess or go. You can't change the rules of these games, but you can use them when you play a real game. Build and Destroy! Builders can be at Gen Con 2014 It's always exciting to see you guys at Gen Con, and now that Colbie actually comes along as well is still pretty exciting. This year while playing the amazing Talislanta you'll find tickets to a TG Forgot, Counter-Strike tournament, a random TF2 Pro servers, a Werewolf tourney, two World Championship Diplomacy tournaments and off course Speakers' Corner. Our first tourney And speaking of tourney, this is the first one of us running, and in honour of Diamond Age I decided to go retro. If you want to have a great fun time with friends enjoy a smooth competitive tournament while playing a game we enjoy ... then this one you should definitely consider. The competition includes 11 players, and about 5 maps, for up to 8 rounds of a length of 1 hour per round or until the end of the allocated time (time limit!). It's about competitive fun, and we gladly welcome everyone (all ages and genders are welcome, but players must declare their gender). Some of you may enjoy it, some of you may enjoy it even more without a dog in the room, and some of you may love to see it but should keep their distance. Whatever your tendencies, it's definitely an experience you'll remember. Competition rules The tournament is structured into rounds, and players are told the round number when they will be allowed to prepare their armies. The end of the tournament will be decided by the players themselves, meaning you must give a full report to the referees. If you cannot do so, you will be disqualified and the defeated players have to play immediately the next round. The referees may, at their discretion, decide any other issue or action deemed worthy to be dealt with, including disqualification. The time limit is enforced by a fourth referee equipped with a stopwatch During the match the referees should be silent and respectful (they will be granted godmode). So please enjoy this game made for fun. Charitable donation If you think this is great game I created, you may also want to read on. Because of that treasure and planet mechanics, I recently had about 30TB of hard disk space that I was rather reluctant to lose. So I made a CD-ROM with large characters and the map "Ennathal". I'm using it to play tourneys as a kind of promotional project that allows me to keep some

VR KUROSHA Dangar: Crossover X Bullet Hell is a collaboration between Nyyuu Labs and Sony Computer Entertainment Japan. We teamed up to produce a VR game that takes advantage of the power of PlayStation VR, the Nintendo Switch, and PlayStation 4, all of which were released in November 2017. We think it's possible to combine the strengths of PlayStation 4 with those of both PlayStation and Nintendo, and make something new that exceeds our expectations. In VR KUROSHA

Dangar: Crossover X Bullet Hell, you have to push yourself to survive as long as you can, simply by walking around the game. As a new breed of warrior, you have a "timeSaber" that lets you slow enemy fire mid-air. With it, you can avoid getting shot to stay alive. You can also jump and double jump to make it easier to take out enemies that are shooting at you. However, the ceiling is high, and you will fall down, but don't worry, you can instantly respawn and do it over. In addition, you can jump into the air even higher and faster than before. In order to play, you will need a PlayStation VR and a Switch. You also need a PlayStation 4 and a PlayStation. Here's a tip: The PlayStation VR is the only way to play it on a TV! After the First Battle of Sona, the remaining commander threw a tantrum and ran away. Many people think he died in prison, but it was actually he decided to commit suicide by jumping off a cliff into the sea. 1) Did he have the courage to try and return to the scene to fight on or did he just run away? 2) Who is his wife? 3) Did he ever tell any other war veterans about Sona? 4) When did he come back to the village? 5) Where was he from originally? 6) Was he the leader of the soldiers who stood at the front lines of the first battle of Sona? 7) Did you know who he was before he revealed to you? 8) Why did you stay with him? After the first battle of Sona, everyone in the village was eager to return home, so no one cared for the brave soldier who fought in the frontline. What happened after the first battle of Sona? Please find the answer to this question at the end of the post.
