Download. Kids offer to build Burger King free meals Three 10-year-old boys from a Carlisle, Pennsylvania elementary school have developed a new program to raise funds for their school. The creation of the Burger King Build-A-Burger Fund is part of the Carlisle School District's (Pennsylvania) Lift-A-Loft program. The board is in the process of deciding what the fund will be used to purchase. One of the teachers overheard kids talking about a website, Lift-A-Loft, that allows you to build a box and design it to raise money to purchase one of 50 items. The building is put together at the end of the day on the same day as the fundraising day to make it easy on the donors. The team used a box created on the site, and were able to raise a whopping $600. To make it even better, they had the opportunity to try out Burger King for free.
